THE L. & E.

While the people of Jackson and Breathitt county boast of a rapid growth and industrial expansion during the last decade, they should not fail to ascribe proper credit to whomsoever credit is due for such expansion.

The Lexington and Eastern railroad which now penetrates the mountain section of Kentucky, extending from Lexington, in the heart of the Bluegrass to Jackson, in the heart of the mountains, has possibly figured more than any other factor in the upbuilding and development of this section, and vast territory tributary to Jackson. It found Jackson fifteen years ago only a small town and opened up to it at once a means of intercourse with the outside world. It placed us within speaking distance with the cities, gave us newspapers and periodicals not yet dry from the press, placed us within reach and within touch of our theretofore more fortunate neighbors and infused into our people a more exalted idea of living. It brought its churches and schools and an investment and enterprise, and improved conditions of industry, and made it possible for Jackson to become, as it is today, one of the best towns in Kentucky. It found us with boundless areas of timber and coal which up to that time had never interested a buyer, and it at once placed our resources as attractive investments on the markets of the outside world and now instead of our property holders seeking investment and failing to find it, capital is daily coming this way. Our timber is being removed and placed on the markets of the world, and other values are coming to take its place; our mines are being explored and developed, but their untold treasures will furnish labor and capital and profit for the generations yet unborn. And that is not all nor could we name the blessings and benefits that have come to us by being placed in immediate touch with the enlightened portions of the world.

Our citizenship has been improved and advanced; many of our people have sought homes in the West and others have taken their place, and by gradual, though decisive means, our people have been greatly improved. They have adopted the benefits that come from culture and enlightenment, and have sought to bring to our homes the conveniences and accommodations that have been employed in the outside world, and we can say today that we have an attractive city, a place suitable and sufficient for the abode of any man. These things have come to us by reason of having been given the blessings of material development, and the elevated and enlightened citizenship.

And as to the personnel of the managers of the railroad, and especially as the local employees for the past ten years, it might be said that we have been most fortunate in being given men of character and ability, as well as men of agreeableness, of kindness and accommodation. Many of our citizens remember with pleasure such agents as Hargrave and Hornbrook, and the more recent agents in the persons of J. W. Prewitt, who is now a valued citizen of Jackson, and Mr. ... who so eminently fills the position of depot agent at Jackson at this time.

All our people remember the late lamented J. R. ... who so faithfully and ably administered the affairs of the road for several years. The road is so fortunate in having such men as W. A. McDowell, general manager, as Chas. Scott as passenger agent and others of ability and foresight in the management of the road at Lexington.

This reference is not made at this time with the intention of indulging in fulsome praise of the L. & E. railroad or its officers, but it is for the purpose of acknowledging credit that is properly due to worthy servants of the public.

Crockettsville.

John Davidson, who is handling timber here, has gone to Jackson to visit his parents and attend the Baptist revival. He will also visit the skating rink while in Jackson and do some artistic skating. Mrs. George Deaton has been on the sick list for a few days. John Thompson and Albert McIntosh, accompanied by their wives, visited Mrs. M. E. Deaton Sunday. Ira Cornett and wife and Rose Turner visited Wm. Sebastian and family Saturday. Archie and Clifton Sebastian and Ollie Deaton visited Arch and Fronie Sebastian Sunday. Mrs. Lewis Baker, who has been sick, is improving. Miss ... of Jackson was visiting at ... of Long's creek was at Jackson Friday inquiring if a deed for timber sold by his father had been acknowledged before his father's death, and said that if no deed had been made and acknowledged before his father's death that done could now be made, except by an order of the court, because the death of his father involved minor heirs in the estate. The citizens of the southwestern part of the county are highly elated over the timber and land deal between a Michigan real estate firm and the New Era Land Co. The Michigan firm has promised to construct a railroad from Heidelberg by the way of upper Buffalo creek during the coming season. Ira Deaton and his sisters, Misses Pearl and Nancy, were visiting their aunt, Nancy Lewis, Sunday. Elden Riley and wife, of Buckhorn, were visiting the latter's mother on Miller branch Sunday. Mrs. Nancy Helton, who has been nearly blind for two months, has about recovered her sight.

A REPORT CORRECTED.
I desire to say to the readers of The Breathitt County News that the report that is now being circulated on Cane Creek and the adjoining neighborhood that I took Mrs. Ed Callahan from her home when she disappeared, or had any connection whatever in her leaving home, is false, and is without any foundation so far as the truth is concerned. I believe that the report was circulated to do me some damage, or to cause a rupture between Ed Callahan and myself.

BY ELD. J. D. HUNTER.

CANNEL CITY, Ky., 12, 4, 07.
Here a great work was to be accomplished. It is a starting point of a new era in the progress and political life of mankind. Our influence extends to the ends of the earth, thrilling and cheering humble homes and wrecking and defying haughty thrones. Our thoughts, our ways, our inventions, our beneficent teachings, go as far as the winds and the waves go. On the broad bosom of our country, under the aegis of liberty and law, of justice and authority of education and morality, are gathered all tongues, all creeds, all customs and peoples. For the first time in human annals we have undertaken by right doing and patriotic endeavor through the triumph and perpetuity of free institutions to demonstrate to the world that freedom is good and forever blest of God.

Our republic stands alone in the history of civil government and has illustrated constitutional freedom in all its beneficence, power and grandeur. Nowhere else has government so enabled man, so elevated woman, so inspired its young men with heroism and ambition, so helped them in their aims in life, so made citizenship glorious by the expansion of christian morality and intelligence, so fostered letters, the arts, the sciences, so protected every creed, so smoothed the road of life and given to all an equal chance for happiness and homes.

The Junior Order United American Mechanics is pledged to stand by and maintain this grand independent American country. I will oppose the landing upon the American soil the undesirable people today than that of foreign immigration. Every part of this felt to some degree the demoralizing effect of the free admission of aliens, unfettered, morally and mentally, to mingle and participate among free born American citizens. It is immigration that is feeding and making fat the liquor powers, filling graves with drunkards, leaving widows and orphans to suffer and be thrown out on a cold-hearted world. It is immigration that is giving the Roman Catholic church its strength. Immigration is the mother and nurse of anarchy. Who was it that took the lives of Abraham Lincoln, James A. Garfield and the gallant William McKinley? It was that anarchy spirit that had its birth and growth in the tide of immigration and dumped on the American soil, and found no rest until it assaulted and took the lives of these three highly and well-beloved American patriots, leaving this nation draped in mourning and the hearts of American fathers, mothers, brothers and sisters bleeding?

There cannot be too great a safeguard thrown around our country against the landing upon the American soil the undesirable and immoral immigrants of the old world. Our suffrage cost the hardships and life blood of the true blue-eyed American patriots, and we, as their sons and daughters, ought to stand by and sustain the freedom and liberty that we are enjoying today, and transmit to our children the same great legacy and matchless citizenship that we have received from our ancestors.

During the year ending June 3, 1907, there landed at Ellis Island, New York harbor 1,004,756 immigrants, of whom more than half located in New York and Pennsylvania—187,618 in the latter State. Many of the men found work in the construction of railroad tunnels in New York and in the mines and iron mills of Pennsylvania.

Floyd Little, of Elkatawa, visited Chester Little Monday.

Misses Sarah and Clara Callahan attended Sunday school here Sunday.

Elihue and Millard Reynolds, of Canoe, passed through here Saturday enroute to Owsley county to visit relatives.

Our Sunday school is progressing nicely, being attended by large crowds, composed of adults, as well as youths. All seem to be interested in the good work.

Peter Stamper, of Sebastian's creek, visited his father-in-law Thanksgiving. The family was more than delighted to see him, as he had been absent for some time.

A church and cottage is now in course of construction for the missionaries. A school will be conducted in the church this winter for the benefit of the children. Instruction free.

will make their future home. We are sorry to lose him, as he was a good neighbor and a good business man and a help to his country.

I read an article in The News from Peabworth in which the writer seemed to think Burton's dog is a Beckham dog. He is mistaken. He is like his master--he was for Willson, but is now for Bradley for the Senate. He has swelled the number of opossums to 58, also two skunks.

The shadow of death has visited our neighborhood and laid its hands on one of our best neighbors, America Hays, who died last Saturday of pneumonia, after an illness of two weeks. She was buried Sunday on the farm where she had lived. She was about 50 years old, a good woman and well liked by all who knew her. She leaves a husband and 11 children.

Old aunt Patsy Combs died Sunday night and was buried Monday in the Rose Bend graveyard. She was 71 years old and her death was caused by dropsy. She leaves several children. She said she was ready to go. God has said from dust thou art and unto dust thou shalt return. So death is certain to us all. God's word will prevail over us all.

S. M. Tutt is adding an addition to his house which stands on a lot near the Columbia building. Capt. Wm. L. Hurst celebrated his seventy-eighth birthday last Thursday. Many of his friends and relatives spent the day with him, and report that they partook of the most sumptuous dinner of the season. Misses Lula and Lizzie Combs, of Stillwater, were the guests at the home of B. D. Rose Monday. C. F. Combs and S. G. Sample spent last Friday and Saturday on Lacey's Creek hunting. They report a death list of 22 birds and a few rabbits. Oil well No. 7 has been recently commenced on the E. F. Duff farm. The protracted meeting which has been in progress here for the past week is still continuing. The services are being conducted by the Revs. Tolson and Mathew, of the local Baptist and Methodist churches, respectively. W. L. Kash and Kelly Kash, of Jackson, have been spending the past few days with their parents at this place. Kelly left here Monday morning for Frankfort where he expects to stay until after the inauguration. Marriage license was issued to the following recently. J. H. Terrill and Letha Taulbee, both of Campton. Wolfe county real estate transfers for the past week: J. H. Stamper, Jr., to R. H. Taulbee for $650 a farm on Devil's Creek, Walker Taulbee, to Henry Hollon for $150 a house and lot on Stillwater, J. M. and G. W. Hows, to J. C. Napier for $450 a house and lot on Swift's Creek, J. C. Tolson, to Carter Vaneleve for $500 a farm on Swift's Creek, Taylor P. Sewell, to Alex Taulbee for $200 a farm on Swift's Creek.

are $1 per month. The daily session is from nine to twelve.

The Collegiate Department has been organized into the College Lycium Club, which is divided into two sections. The following were elected officers of Section A: Ernest Newland, president; Olive Pollard, vice president; Eliza Campbell, secretary; Pierce Crawford, treasurer; Robert Cope, first marshal; Jessie Patton, second marshal; Arthur Davis, Margaret Snowden and Prof. Crego, curators.

Section B elected the following:
Mae Taulbee, president; Sam Lyon, vice president; Bertha Jameson, secretary; Winifred Brophy, treasurer; Norman Combs, first marshal; Sherman Turner, second marshal; Mary Stanhope, Nellie Brophy, and Mrs. Crego, curators.

Friday afternoon the two sections met in joint session, adopted a constitution and transacted other business. Prof. Sloan conducted this meeting and gave the students an excellent drill in parliamentary law. Section B will give the first program early in January.

The elocution class will present a college play, "Up to Freddie," and an amusing farce, "The Snig-gles Family," in the college chapel, Tuesday evening, December 17, at

What Tommy Somers Did For His Father.

(Original.)

Jim Somers kissed his wife and his son Tom, aged six, the apple of his eye, and, smiling encouragingly to an admonition from his wife to be careful-of what neither knew-started down the road.

He had walked a mile perhaps when suddenly a frightful shriek and call for help came from a wood beside the road. In a few minutes he was beside the body of a woman who had just been murdered. His first thought was that if found he would be accused of murder. His wife's words "be careful" came to him with an especial meaning. He hurried back into the road, emerging from the wood just in time to meet a man passing in a wagon. The man asked him if he had heard shrieks. Jim replied "Yes" and "No" and looked confused. He passed on with his pick and shovel. The man, after Jim had left, searched the wood, found the body, and an hour later Jim was arrested.

There being no jail at hand, Somers was taken to the sheriff's house and put in a room in the top story. The murder created great excitement, and threats were made to lynch the man against whom the evidence was so strong. The sheriff swore in half a dozen deputies, armed them and waited a favorable opportunity to run his prisoner to the county jail, ten miles distant, but, hearing of preparations to take him from him, desisted. Meanwhile Jim remained in a room fifty feet from the ground, with one window and no furniture except a chair. A nail was driven in over the lower sash and under the upper one.
He could not get out of the window, and there was not a strip of anything to make a rope of to let himself down.
The sheriff had little fear of his escaping. The prisoner was not likely to court being hunted by a mob.

The day after Jim Somers was shut up he told the sheriff that his liver was troubling him and asked for a lennon. It was given him. In a closet he found an old tin box of blacking.
With the lemon and the blacking he determined to make an attempt to escape and hide or leave the country.

His first move was to ask for pen and paper with which to write a letter to his wife. His request was granted, but of course his letter was read by the sheriff before sending it. It contained his protestation of innocence and some instructions as to engaging counsel. There was one sentence his wife could not understand—"Take the candle grease out of my trousers." Why Jim should be thinking of the candle grease in his trousers at such a time she could not imagine. The sheriff had noticed it, but did not suspect that it meant more than it purported to express. Mrs. Somers could make nothing of it. When taking candle grease out of clothes she was used to ironing the soles with paper between the cloth and the iron.

Then she heated an iron and placed it on her husband's letter. When she took it off there were brown letters written in a postscript:
"Tom, 12 night, tie rope & claw hammer to cord under rear window." The expression on little Tom's face when his mother read him this postscript was remarkable to behold. His eyes were as big as butter plates and at once took on pride and a sense of responsibility. His father's freedom, his life, depended upon him. In ten seconds he had grown ten years older.

That night the little fellow, with forty feet of rope coiled over his right shoulder and under his left arm, the claw hammer tied to one end of it, stole away to the sheriff's house.
When he reached the yard he stopped and looked over the fence, expecting to see a guard. There was no watch outside. A deputy was asleep near the prisoner's door, but there was no fear except of a mob, which might come at any moment. Little Tom crawled to the house. Reaching the rear, he hunted about and soon found the end of a cord that looked like the tail of a kite, for it had been made of strips of his father's shirt. Attaching to it the end of the rope, with the claw hammer, he crawled away and waited.

Somers had one end of the cord in his hand. It had been let down through a square in the window from which a pane had been removed by digging out the putty with an edge of the tin blacking box. As soon as the jerk from below ceased he pulled and getting the rope and the claw hammer, noiselessly removed the nails over the window and raised the sash, jamming a nail in between sash and casing to hold the former up. Then, tying the rope to the chair, he got out the window, pulled the chair across it and let himself down.

"Pop!"

"Hist!"
Taking his boy by the hand, Somers stole away. He found his wife in the road, and the three went home. Then Jim, shaved and arrayed in his wife's apparel, went—nobody knew where.
Soon after the escape suspicion for the murder fastened upon another man. He was tried, convicted and confessed. Then Jim Somers returned to his home and was welcomed penitently by his neighbors.
Tom Somers is the proudest boy in his school; that, young as he is, he can't divest his mind of the narrow escape his father had from death and gives thanks daily that he was the means by which that death was averted.
